

A “mini” Wrangler May 23, 2008

Good afternoon and Happy Memorial Day!

We’ve got just a few things before we try to get out of here for the weekend:

Spring is here and the rivers are rising. You will see the water table come up along the river road and please be careful if you are walking or biking through wet areas. We do still have trees that were damaged in the recent fire that could be hazardous so please stay on or near the roads and trails. If you are fishing be prepared for spring run-off conditions. The fish are there and they are hungry but the water is very cloudy (muddy).

Everyday we are more and more grateful for the extraordinary service we received from so many firefighters, homeowners, the ranch staff and even a couple of early season golfers joined in to fight the fires. We may never know who all did what!
THANKS!!!!

The ground cover is growing back so the burnt areas are not so stark, you may see members of Natural Resource Consultants outback evaluating the damaged areas. FYI, the red marks are trees that are severally damaged, yellow marks questionable and the blue denote trees that should do just fine. We are cataloging the damage and will create remedial plan from this information.

In closing, Waste Solutions will be picking up trash as scheduled, the only day the do not pick up is Christmas Day and this year that is on a Thursday so we will not be affected. If you have large or special pick up items please give them a call first at 970-963-1941.

Again, thanks to all who “put it on the line” to protect the Ranch at Roaring Fork!
